11:16:12 From Andrew Henderson : is there a difference between a burl and a limb grow over ?
11:34:04 From Peter Nakatani : is there a mold issue?
11:35:24 From Andrea Baumann : What do you think about using a smoker set at 120* ... they make these as slow cookers and can go as low as 100*. Also how do you sanitize the piece from bugs?
11:36:14 From John Duckett : What are good sources for burls?
11:37:13 From John Suhreptz : You mentioned Anchorseal. Do you Anchorseal and then put in the kiln?

<https://www.australianburls.com/> (also supplies
11:39:28 From Cynthia Gibson : Banksia Pods

11:39:58 From John Duckett : Does Elmer's glue work as well for sealing?
11:40:13 From Cynthia Gibson : <https://www.nwfiguredwoods.com/>
11:41:05 From Scott Hampton : Buckeye Burl: Witt Hardwoods in Porterville California
11:41:47 From Andrew Hall : I use PVA and have had a lot of success with it
11:42:05 From Scott Hampton : I can send you some.

11:43:11 From Don Prorak : Rockler wax sealer?
11:43:39 From sally ault : mike dilutes the PVA a bit.
11:43:44 From Scott Hampton : Watered down White Elmer's Glue, with a few drops of Dawn Dishwashing Liquid to break the water tension.
11:44:16 From david hulett : I bought "tree saver" from craft supplies usa.... it's PVA.
11:44:21 From Andrea Baumann : What's PVA stand for?
11:44:22 From Terry Brasher : Anchorseal Original or Anchorseal 2?
11:45:16 From Scott Hampton : Polyvinyl Acetate
11:45:25 From Scott Hampton : PVA
11:45:47 From Alex Hixenbaugh : I've had better success with the original Anchorseal
11:50:29 From Scott Hampton : One gallon of Elmer's White 'School' Glue (available at Target), two gallons of water, and three or four drops of Dawn Dishwashing Soap. Makes really good sealer, and much cheaper than commercial sealers. Same formula as 'Tree Saver' that Craft Supplies sells.

11:57:32 From George Kabacinski : would you trim the 4th one on the bandsaw before making a vessel?
11:57:45 From Scott Hampton : Sorry, had to step away for a moment. What type of burl is this???

12:03:31 From Scott Hampton : I mix and store my sealer in a Home Depot bucket. A paddle stirrer for a drill works best for mixing. Mix the water and glue first, then add the dishwashing liquid and stir lightly by hand.
12:03:42 From Holm Miehlbradt : Are you using a bowl saver or any other way to get more pieces out of a blank?
12:05:13 From Peter Nakatani : so what your saying is that a burl is like a box of chocotates
12:07:11 From Scott Hampton : And an important note: Add the glue to the water, not water to the glue.
12:07:23 From Dawn Herndon-Charles : #2 is more of a slam dunk for Cindy; it would be really interesting and informative to see Cindy do
